It patches the universal themes in memory, so it can read and apply stylesheets. It is written in C++ and uses the Qt library for graphics and QSettings to keep track of your styles. It can also be used to change any theme that uses the system.win32k.dll. It allows you to patch many themes (eg: Windows XP and Windows Vista). An article published by Microsoft showcases how to patch the Windows XP theme. The article is outdated, and you might get a white screen when using it. You will need to re-install the patch for it to work. Download the patch The patch file is named UniversalUXThemePatch.zip. Extract the contents of the zip file. Place the extracted zip file in a folder named "UniUX" in the directory C:\Windows\system32\main\system Running the Patch When you run it, you will be asked a series of questions about the themes that you want to patch. Click the OK button When the UniversalUXThemePatcher runs for the first time, it will install itself in C:\Windows\system32\main\system. The patch will automatically begin patching the currently loaded theme(s) in memory. It will not install itself, but it will patch all the styles in memory, so that you don't have to start it manually. You can see the patch installing itself by viewing the taskbar icon. The patch is done installing itself when you see the patch icon turn into a success sign on your taskbar. If you want to reload the theme(s) it patched. When you run the UniversalUXThemePatcher again, the patched theme(s) will be applied. If you want to modify the patched theme(s), you can do so now. This patch will patch the Windows 7 theme. Locking styles If you want to lock the theme, you can do so by clicking the Lock Button in the installer and selecting No from the Lock styles list. When you lock a theme, it will be patched while you are away from your computer, so it will be applied when you come back and run the UniversalUXThemePatcher. If you select Yes, when you come back to your computer, you can still lock the theme before you start the patching process. You will 82157476af
